

Montie Design Exhibits at 1st Annual N.C. Defense Business Association Expo

Defense industry businesses from across North Carolina and beyond met April 19-20 to promote their services and begin potential partnerships during the first-ever North Carolina Defense Business Association (NCDBA) Symposium and Exposition, held at Pinehurst's world-famous Pinehurst Resort.

"For years, military-related trade shows have grown in North Carolina, but this is the first such expo to target all of North Carolina's defense industry players with the goal of helping to grow our state's share of that market space," NCDBA board chairman Steven Moore said.

U.S. Senator Kay Hagan and Lt. Gen. Frank Helmick gave presentations by video, which were accompanied by live presentations from military officers and those representing vendors to the military.

Montie Design exhibited at the event as part of its expansion into serving prime defense contractors. Montie Roland remarked, "With the consolidation of military operations to Ft. Bragg, it only makes sense for us to partner with engineering-related companies doing business just a short drive from the Research Triangle. We established new relationships for teaming opportunities at the event, and look forward to serving the military market more actively."

About Montie Design

Montie Design is an innovative concept-to-marketplace product design and development firm with core competencies in mechanical engineering and industrial design. Implementing a collaborative approach to partnering with clients, Montie Design balances vision with usability in realizing products that are economical to manufacture, elegant, and robust. The firm operates out of the Southeast's innovation hub, the Research Triangle region of North Carolina, with its wealth of industry-leading technology, resources and customers. For more information, visit www.montie.com.